GOOD corporate neighbors are hard to come by and that's the reason for the Township of Livingston's nomination of Bell Communication Research, Inc. Presently employing 1,160 persons, Bellcore's facility has been assessed at $19.5 million. Leased to the company by Livingston Circle Associates, the firm's tax contributions and other economic advantages are welcome.

But not at the price of sacrificing the community's residential character and, says Township Manager Charles J. Tahaney, that's why a firm such as Bellcore, "responsible and aware of its position within the community and responsive to the needs of the community, its citizens and corporate neighbors" is so desirable.

Tahaney says that the corporate headquarters offers a wide variety of employment opportunities to Livingston residents and those in neighboring communities. Bellcore employees are active in many civic and area service organizations and the firm and its workforce have made a smooth and positive transition into Livingston life.

If there are any more out there the stature of Bell Communications Research, Inc., the Township of Livingston is interested.
